Friends to the number of about 80 called on Walter Colby last Tuesday evening and helped him husk a large amount of corn. A firesupper was served and a very pleasant time enjoyed. The day of the good old "husking bee" has not entirely passed.

A special village meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock at Seaver's hall on Friday evening to see if the village will vote to have the telephone wires removed from the electric light poles. The new day electric system will soon be in vogue and it seems wise to have something done before that time.

C. R. Prescott is building an addition of 16 x 28 feet to his barn. He split the roof at the ridgepole and moved half of it 16 feet to the west side and changed the roof into a hip roof or a three eave roof. This gives him a barn 28 x 36 feet on the ground with plenty of hay loft.

By some freak of nature almost the darkness of night settled down on this village and vicinity Friday for about an hour from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock. Lights were necessary in the places of business. It looked as though the astronomers had failed to announce an eclipse for certainly the darkness eclipsed any eclipse we have had for years in the daytime.

Joseph Barton has taken a job of the Boston & Maine railroad to build an underpass crossing at the railroad crossing where Mrs. Peters was killed a few years ago, just below the Willoughby Wood and Lumber company's plant in Sutton. About 4000 yards of dirt are to be removed, about 350 yards of granite will be used in construction. Mr. Barton and his gang of men have begun work and expect to finish it this fall.

The Woman's Literary club met on Wednesday evening with Mrs. A. T. Buswell, 12 members and three visitors being present. The evening's program was as follows: roll call, music; Papers, "Stories of Famous Songs," Mrs. Wright; "Edward Grieg," written by Mrs. Pierce and read by Mrs. Cutler; piano solo, Mrs. Buswell. Following the program light refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour enjoyed by all present.

Clyde Rines, who has been working for S. C. Currier for two or three years, has gone to Worcester, Mass. He has a good position in an express office there. The following letter has been received by the parents and guardians of pupils in the academy and graded school:

Dear Friend:

On Tuesday evening, October 22, from 8 to 10:30 o'clock at Odd Fellows' hall a reception will be given to the teachers of our public schools and the general public is most cordially invited. Parents having children in school are not only invited but strongly urged to be present. Come and meet the teacher who has your child in charge, get acquainted, and talk over school matters. It cannot fail to be a benefit to our school.

This reception will be absolutely informal and its success depends entirely upon you and the support you give it.

We know you are greatly interested in our school and all it means for your children. Come out and show our teachers that this is a real interest not simply an apparent or passive one.

Sincerely,
J. A. PEABODY,
C. E. HAMALITT,
O. H. MOSSMAN,
School Board.

Without doubt the finest collection of precious stones ever seen in this section was seen at Ling's jewelry store last week. The writer saw eight diamonds and emeralds and the bills accompanying them. The eight have a wholesale value of more than $5000, the best stone, a diamond, has a retail value of $1100. The best emerald was valued at $700. This collection is sent Mr. Lang for prospective customers.

E. F. Moore, contractor for building the macadamized road, was here Friday looking over the operation and noting the progress of the work. J. W. Votey, civil engineer and road expert of Burlington, was here several days recently examining the road work and declared that the stone which was being used was not first-class for the second and third coat or courses. It was well enough for the under layer but too soft for the two top courses. He with the trustees prospected all about the vicinity for better rock and struck some in N. M. Lewis' pasture where there seemed to be a large amount. The engine and crusher were moved from the Trombly pasture and set up in the F. B. Lang field near the ledge and also near water for the engine and other purposes. This rock seems to be O. K. and if on working proves so it will be used for the whole road. The under layer is quite coarse and will be about six inches thick, the second layer is finer, and the last layer very fine. The whole thickness when laying loose is nine inches but each course is rolled with a heavy roller which brings it down to six inches.

The first game of basket ball this season was played Friday night between the girls' team from West Derby and our home team. From the start the game was exciting and promised to be close. The Barton team was much heavier and more experienced, but were held down by their opponents. At the end of the first period West Derby stood two points ahead. The second period was much harder fought and Barton had "hard luck" to cage the ball while West Derby had a good eye, and again Derby stood ahead. The last period would equal any boys' team in roughness and both teams were determined to win. With a few successful shots the Barton girls put the score out of reach of West Derby, finishing 11 to 10 in favor of Barton.

Line up:
BARTON: Welch, rf; Page, lf; Leslie, c; Maxwell, rg; Brown, lg. Baskets from floor, Welch 2, McCauley 2, Davis 2, Leslie, Maxwell; baskets from fouls, Leslie 3, Davis 2. Time, three 15 minute periods. Referee, Foster; umpire, Underwood.

Edward Francis Dutton, aged 75 years, one of Barton's wealthiest and most respected townsmen, met his death at his own hands by hanging, Tuesday, Oct. 15, at 8:30 a. m. Nothing has stirred the community to such an extent for several years, and all day little groups of young and old were gathered about the streets and public places exchanging condolences and regrets. It was so unfortunate and so unexpected that it was some time before his many friends could realize the sad consequences of his act. Plans were all completed for a journey to California where Mr. and Mrs. Dutton were to spend the winter, as they have done several seasons. Only the day before Mr. Dutton had engaged a jobber to plow his garden that it might be ready for him upon his return to Vermont next spring; he had arranged for the water commissioner to draw off the water from the house pipes and shut off the supply; he had ordered the MONITOR to be sent to his winter address at Pasadena; he had decided to leave Barton on the Montreal express the following day, and in fact every detail had been attended to with the same care and judgment that has characterized his business affairs for more than fifty years. On Tuesday morning he arose at the usual time from a good night's rest, ate a hearty breakfast and expressed himself as being in fine condition for his trip to California. He seemed in the best of spirits and Mrs. Dutton, who was busy with the morning work, paid no attention to him until after half an hour it was noticed that his shoes were where they had been left the night before. In company with her daughter, Mrs. H. C. Pierce, who had just called, she began a search of the premises, and in the hay loft this faithful helpmate and companion for more than half a century found the lifeless body of her husband. The wonder is that a woman of her advanced age could bear the dreadful shock of so sad a calamity and especially when, a half hour later, a note was found filled only with words of endearment for her and regrets for her sake. No motive for this rash deed can be imagined and the only explanation which can be offered is that Mr. Dutton was for the time suffering from temporary insanity or violent melancholia. The note which he left shows he was possessed of the mistaken idea that he was so old that he was of no use to himself or those about him. This shows a lapse of mental reasoning, for, as a matter of fact, he had everything to live for. He was a kind and loving husband and father, and was surrounded by those who held him dear. He had a competence of worldly goods that put him beyond the reach of want. He had lived a life of usefulness crowned with success and in his old age he could have awaited God's own harvest with a knowledge that he had done his share toward making the world better and this life worth living. Mr. Dutton was born at Royalton, May 4, 1832. He was married August 31, 1854, in Royalton and shortly afterwards came to Barton where he has since been closely associated with the town's social and business life. During war times he was in the mill business with Messrs. Baldwin and Chandler, and in 1871 he purchased the drug store of Myron Joslyn, which he conducted until he sold out to his son-in-law, H. C. Pierce. He retired from business in 1885 and built the fine residence in which he has since lived. He has held many offices of trust and honor both for his town and village.

He was for many years the town treasurer of the town of Barton and was a village trustee at the time the present light system was installed. He was a past master and for many years treasurer of Orleans Lodge, F. and A. M., of which lodge he was one of the oldest members. The deceased is survived by his bereaved widow, an only daughter, Mrs. H. C. Pierce of Barton, and a brother, David Dutton of Bethel. The sympathy expressed for those who mourn his loss is sincere. Funeral services were held at the Congregational church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock under Masonic rites, Rev. W. A. Warner officiating. Interment was at Welcome O. Brown cemetery at Barton. The funeral was largely attended both by Masons and townspeople and the floral tribute was most profuse. The number of Masons attending in a body was about sixty.
